

Abstract:

C04006

Process for crosslinking organic semiconductors

- 5     The present invention describes a novel method for crosslinking organic semiconductors and conductors by initiating this crosslinking in an autophotosensitised manner. It furthermore describes the production of organic electronic devices through the use of this crosslinking method. The properties of the electronic devices are thereby improved.